IN THE 1952 TAHQUITZ

As Contrived by the Students
Of Hemet Union High School
Hemet, California

It Could Have Happened

To You in '52

It did happen to Joe Naugh, a typical student of Hemet Union High School.

The year 1952 distinguished itself by being a rather damp season for Southlanders, Hemet proving to be no exception. For it rained so hard, and so long, that the San Jacinto River filled to the brim with cool, bubbling water. To complicate matters further, so many fish set up housekeeping in these crystal waters that a mother bass frequently discovered herself rearing abandoned catfish, whales, and minnows along with her own healthy brood. News of this fisherman's paradise quickly reached the Hemet campus, whereupon, Joe immediately awarded himself a leave of absence for "scientific" study of fish—ing.

But fate was against Joe. All of his fishing gear had been unceremoniously carted off to the city dump by the unsympathetic truant officer. Unmindful of the consequences, however, Joe unearthed the necessary equipment, "borrowed" a can of petrol with which to gas his rod, and whizzed away to try his luck.

If Fish Stories

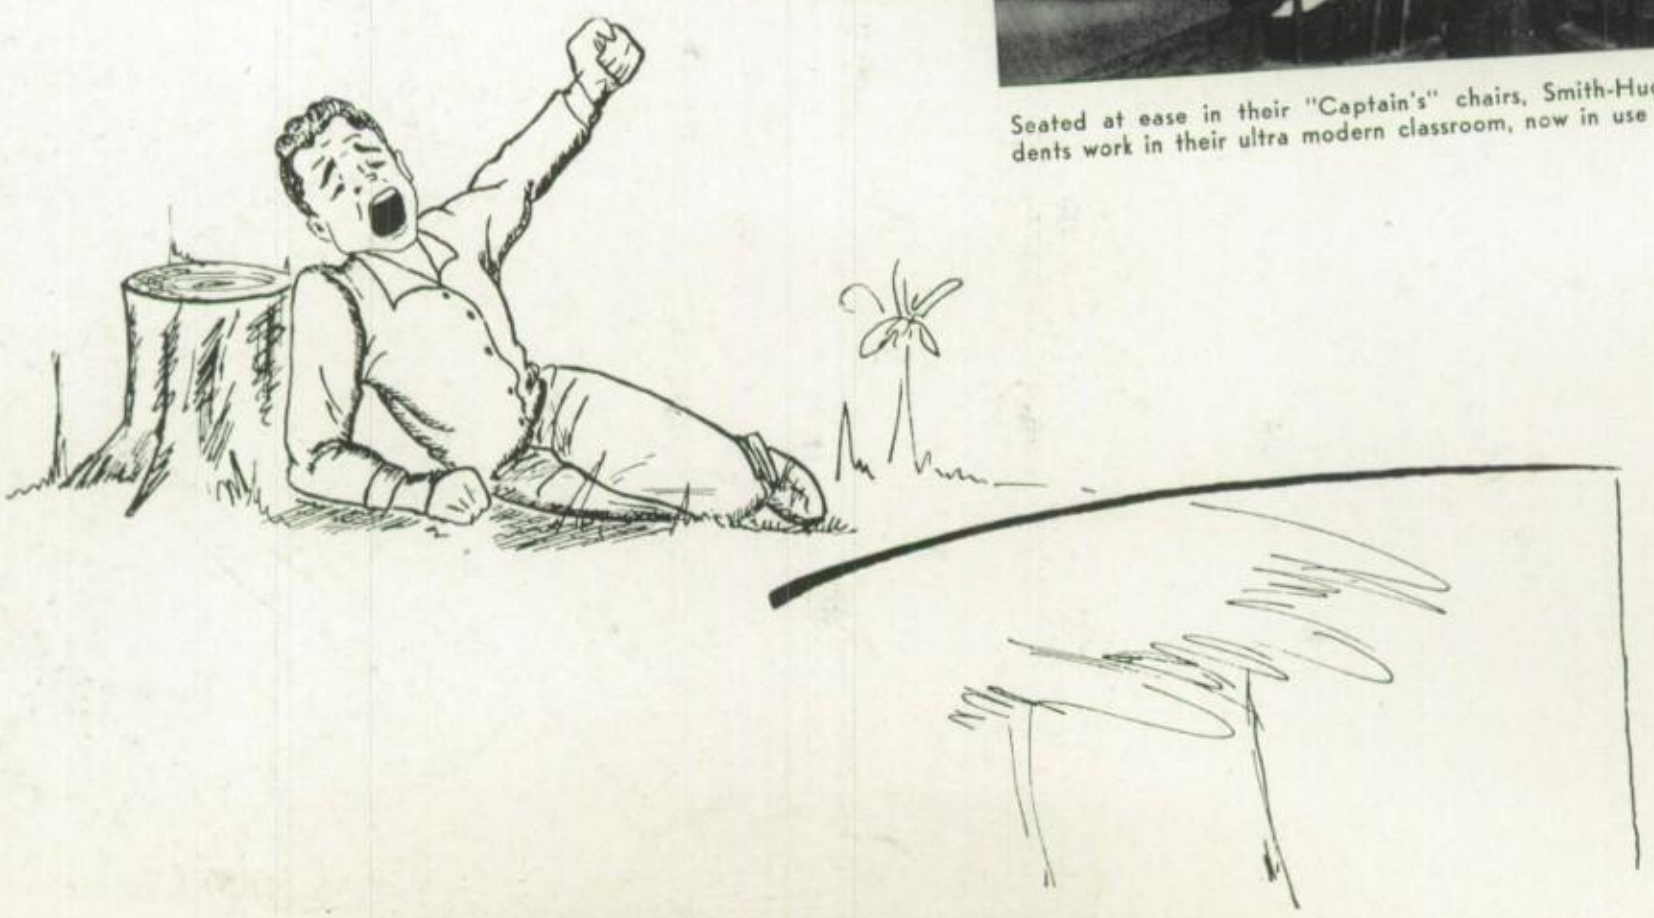
When he arrived at the fishing grounds, Joe's luck had seemingly remained in the classroom, for two cans of bait, three changes of clothing, and an empty tackle-box later, a hungry, and weary Joe, fell sound asleep on the river bank. He had crammed his brain so thoroughly with the subject of fish ,that he had this most realistic dream.

"In the turbulent waters of the Pacific, Wilbur the whale had been suffering from a psychosis as result of being jilted by his sweetheart, Penelope the Porpoise. He imagined himself to be a salmon, and began swimming up the treacherous San Jacinto River to drown his sorrows.

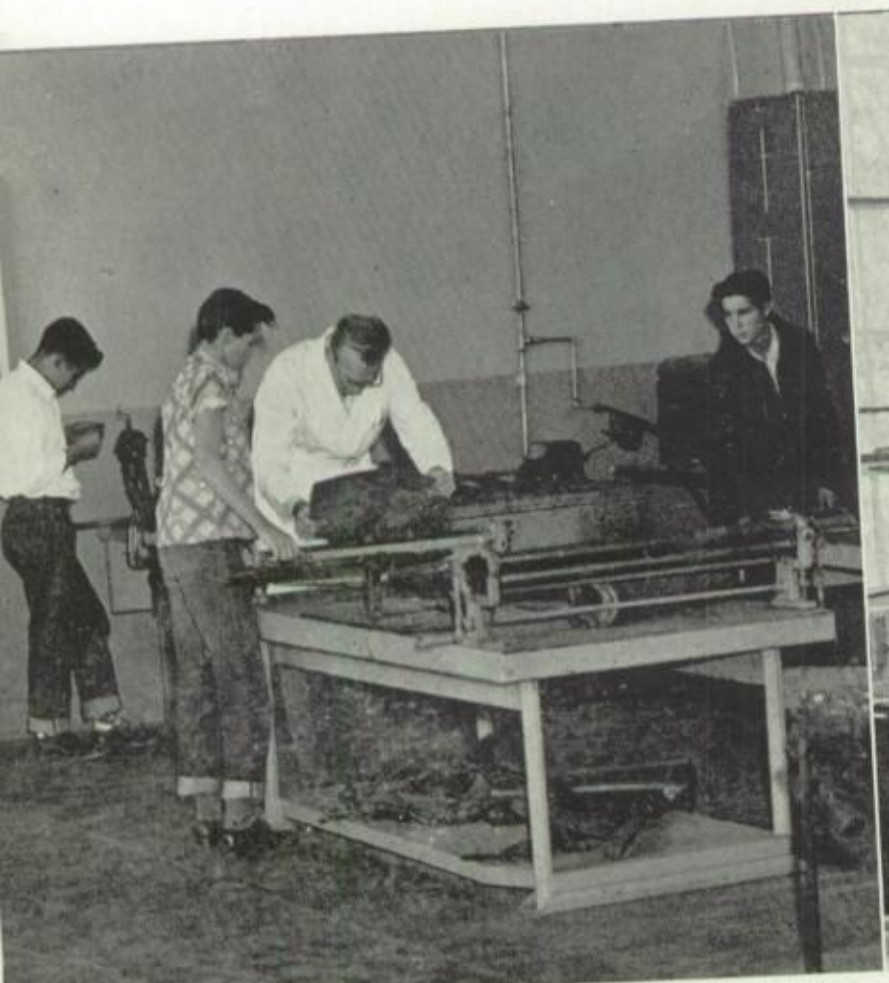
Suddenly, much to Joe's amazement, Wilbur emerged from the river, with Hemet High and all its inmates perched precariously on his enormous tongue.

"Hoppin' hippopotamuses," exclaimed Joe, "This, I gotta see! Hey fellers, wait fer me! I don't wanta miss nuttin!" SPLASH!

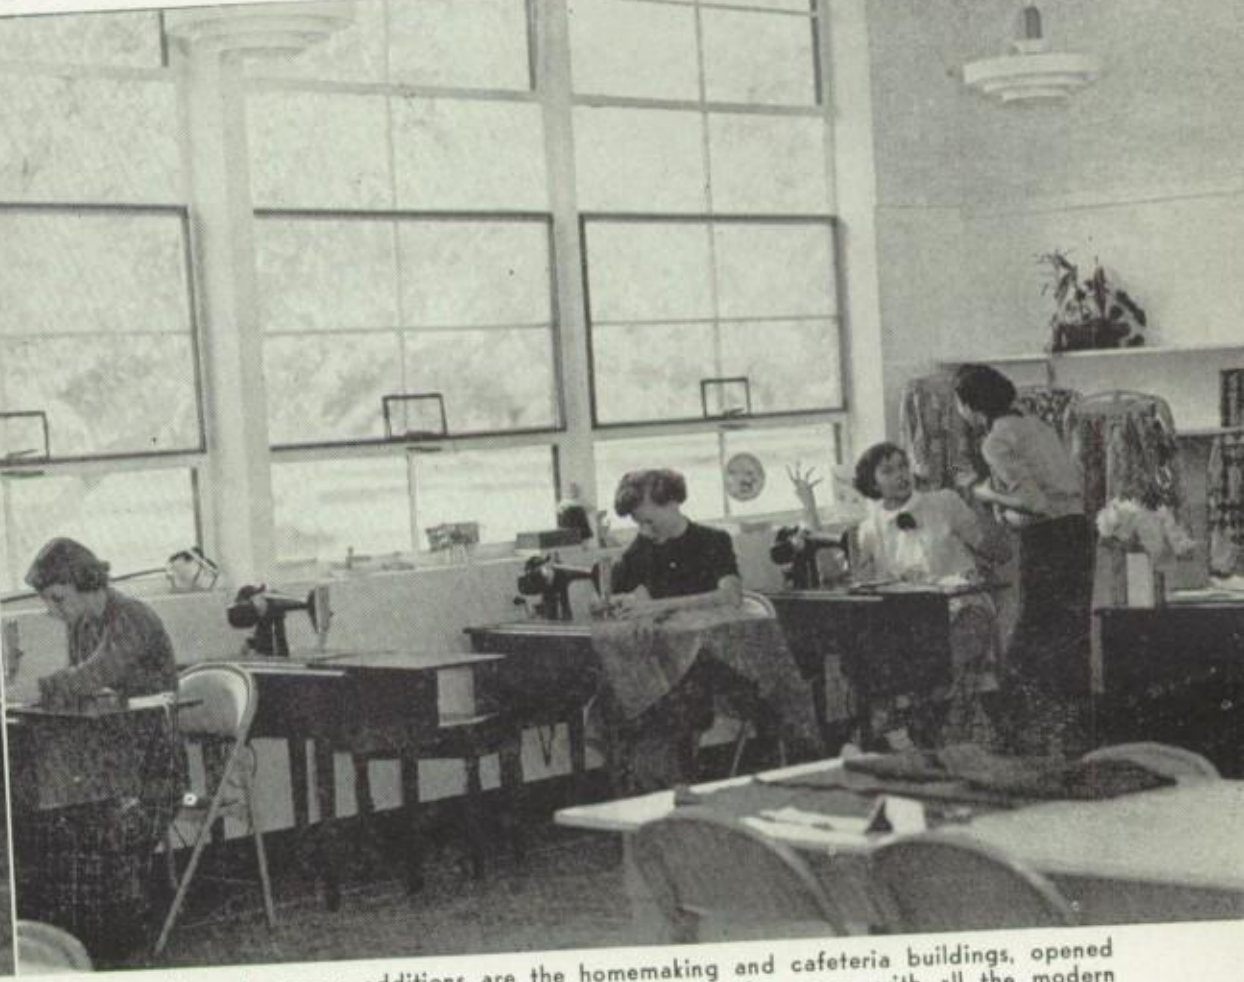
Seated at ease in their "Captain's" chairs, Smith-Hughes agriculture students work in their ultra modern classroom, now in use for the second year.



Came True



Metal shop workers, under the supervision of Mr. Vandenberg, enjoy their spacious and well-lighted quarters.



Newest campus additions are the homemaking and cafeteria buildings, opened for use last September. Shown here is the sewing room, with all the modern homemaker's aids,—sewing machines, steam irons, and even a fitting room.

Deserted now, but swarming with life during the noon hour is the arcade which runs between the cafeteria and the homemaking rooms.

Dedication...

Beginning her work at Hemet High in 1929, as English instructor and librarian, Miss Alice Beaird has since then taught everything from English and civics to math and senior problems. Now Dean of Girls, she has taken her place not only on the faculty, but in the hearts of all the students who have been instructed and counseled by her.

Having received her A.B. degree at the Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska, she did graduate work at the Colorado Teachers College, Greeley, Colorado, and at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

Quietly but efficiently, Miss Beaird has for many years managed the senior class almost single-handed! She has also found time to give generously of her services to our community and to pursue her many hobbies. Her administrative ability is proved by the fact that she is a past president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, while from her garden, one of her main interests, we can certainly see that she has a love for neatness and beauty; besides that, she collects china and knits!

But facts and figures won't tell what a vital part of our school life here at Hemet Miss Beaird has become. She is one of the best sports in the world, even to having a water-pistol fight on Rube Day (she won. too). She is helpful, a hard worker, and with such a wonderful personality that we just can't say how much we appreciate what she has done for us. But anyway, thanks a million, Miss Beaird!

So Joe, and Hemet High, quickly disappeared inside Wilbur the Whimsical Whale, to spend an entire year inside his cavernous anatomy.

LEADERS

Our board members are responsible for the operation of the schools and for the curriculum taught, as well as for the hiring of all teachers, principals, and other school employees.

This year the board requested a lay advisory group which was made up of one member from each community organization, as well as several students from the high school. Through this lay advisory group, the schools, community, and school board were able to work more effectively for better schools and relations.

Dr. Jacob F. Wiens, district superintendent of schools.

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

May I take this opportunity of congratulating the advisors and staff members of the Tahquitz on the preparation of this Annual. It has been with keen interest that I have watched the many persons concerned, work hard in bringing this book to its fine conclusion.

May I also take this opportunity of complimenting the graduating class on the successful completion of your high school education. I have been especially pleased since this is my first year in Hemet, to see the very high standards which have been set by you. Not only are your standards high in academic achievements and in the things which you learned from the classroom, but they are also high in your many activities which have been related so closely to your school life. These activities, be they athletics, music, drama writing or speaking, service projects, or student government are all pathways to future opportunities and successes. could not commend you on your high standards if I did no include the whole realm of your fine attitudes and high ideals, your practice in daily citizenship and cooperating and working with your fellow students and teachers. In al of these standards you have set high goals for future classe to attain.

To you who make up the remainder of the student body may I urge you to take these standards of the Senior Clas and set them even higher so that each year may see our school grow and improve in every possible way.

Accept my best wishes for a successful future, be it the seniors who will leave us to make their riches elsewhere o those students who will return next year to carry on fo Hemet High School.

JACOB F. WIENS

Advancing from Hemet Junior high school with the Class of '54 was Principal C. Guy Warfel, who became high school principal after serving across the street in the same capacity.

Coordinating classroom and curricular activities is always one of the major duties of a principal, and Mr. Warfel has been especially successful in this field, showing fairness and justice in his dealings with both teachers and students, and proving his interest in student activities by helping direct the junior play.

Absent? Tardy? In office 3, Mrs. Marjorie Mathew, attendance clerk, officiated in deciding whether you were "to be excused or not to be excused." In office 2, Mrs. Margaret Huntoon Nelson, alias "Shylock" confiscated hard-earned money for student-body cards, annuals, and rings. When Mrs. Nelson resigned in March, Mrs. Anna Mae Linehan took over her work, soon becoming acquainted with the countless inquiries and inquirers coming into office 2.

Meanwhile, as the superintendent's secretary, Mrs. Grace Scott executed transactions, both local and district, and kept the accounts straight in the administration office.

rs. Marjorie Mathew, attendance clerk and cafeteria shier, became a familiar figure before school was many ys old.

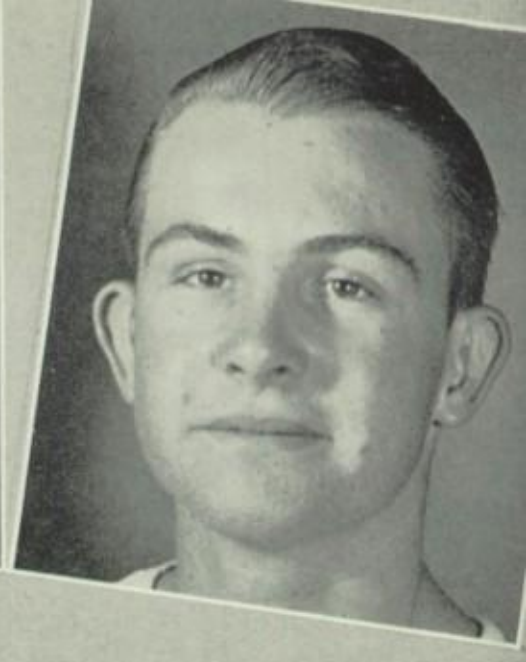
Mrs. Grace Scott, secretary to the superintendent, was the behind-the-scenes person who kept records and accounts straight and handled district business.

Mrs. Margaret Nelson, secretary in office 2, let Gordon Kesson play with the ring-fitter, but he had to part with a sizable sum before he could wear a real ring.

Gregg Figgins, first-semester student body president.

Patty Hurtz, first-semester student body secretary.

Edris Jones, first-semester student body treasurer.



Shack Pitcher, first-semester student body vice president.

The Student Council

One of the first-semester council's greatest headaches was the annual Hallowe'en carnival. lining up "gyp games," building booths, ordering prizes, and preparing food kept everyone working overtime for several days, but the success of the carnival justified the effort. This council also took over the publicity for our home ball games and sponsored the bonfire rally before the Hemet-San Jacinto game.

The second-semester council sponsored the books-for-Korea drive as well as the Red Cross drive, and was active in the Riverside County Students Association, attending meetings each month. Keeping the curb parking places in front of the school marked was a job, but the council also took this as a project to keep the parking area less congested.

Galley and Maintenance Crews

The pride and joy of our campus this year was the new "cafetorium." And if you were to go behind scenes, that is, to the kitchen—you would find stainless steel kitchen appliances to make any housewife drool with envy. The addition to the cafeteria of a snack bar during second semester proved a hit with nearly everyone. Initiated as a meeting place by the faculty at a pre-school breakfast meeting, the cafetorium lived up to the "orium" part of its name throughout the rest of the year, being used for P.-T.A. meetings, institute sessions, and even a dance or two during the spring semester.

Custodians for our various buildings worked patiently to provide school supplies, clean the buildings, heat classrooms, and carry away the endless piles of crumpled papers and discarded schoolwork which accumulated in the waste baskets each day.

Kept Things Shipshape

Although they are seldom ever seen by students, the gardeners are always busy around our campus, tending lawns, flowers and shrubbery. This year they even gave the tall palm trees poodle cuts, trimming away all the lower branches. Not the least of their duties was trying to anticipate the location of student litter and to keep it reduced to a minimum in order to avoid campus disfigurement.

Also behind the scenes of school life were the maintenance men, who were the first ones called upon when a bit of carpenter work, props for a play, or booths for the carnival were needed. These men also painted the gym, giving it a much-needed face lifting.

In a rural community such as ours, school bus transportation is an absolute necessity. Therefore our reliable bus drivers are indispensable. Besides toting a load of clamorous students to and from school every day, they worked overtime to transport athletic teams and rooters to games, the band to its many contests, and even to retrieve G.A.A. members from their Big Bear weekend.

Classroom Swells

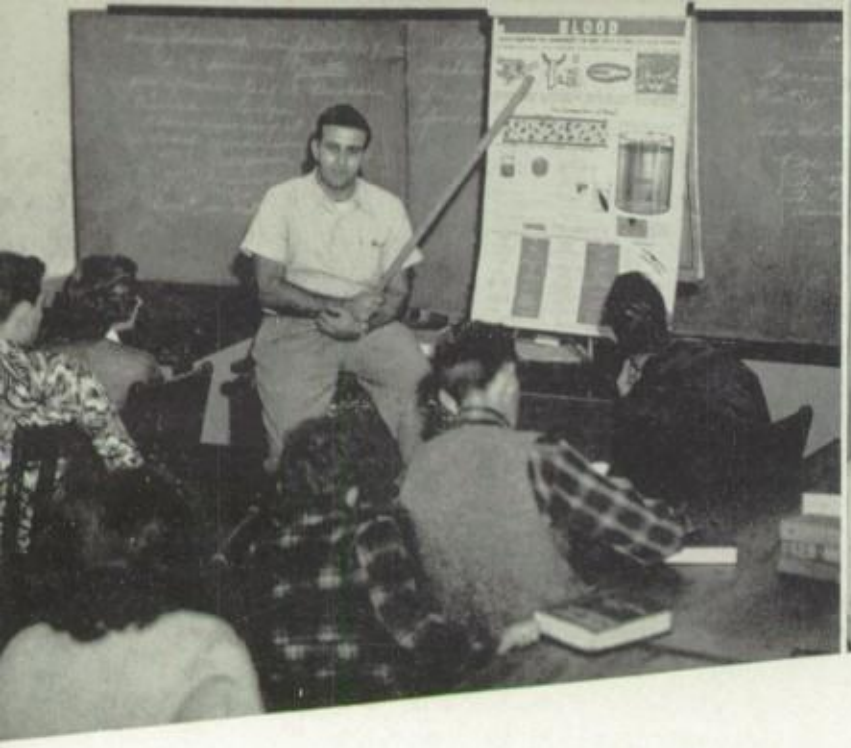
Coaches Al Fages, Roy Cooper and George Gaudreault beam with satisfaction as they look back on a successful sports year.



Mr. Fages uses a wall chart to illustrate his lesson on circulation of the blood for biology students.

Speech and drama students demonstrate symmetrical balance in this pictorial dramatization.

As usual, we had the pleasure of smelling whatever the chemistry students were currently concocting. As the miscellaneous odors were wafted through the halls, teachers and students alike wished that the chemistry class had provided clothes pins for their noses.

Biology students studied such topics as the structure of the human body and became familiar with blood circulation and the nervous, digestive and respiratory systems. Emergencies and diseases we meet in our lives were also taken up.

In English and speech classes there were the usual moans and groans on having to listen to Shakespeare, read Arthurian legends or write essays. Our music department was forever working on programs, concerts and the like. The girls in P. E. complained of aches and pains from running around the track, but the boys' P. E. classes, under the leadership of our coaches, took everything as it came without any fuss.

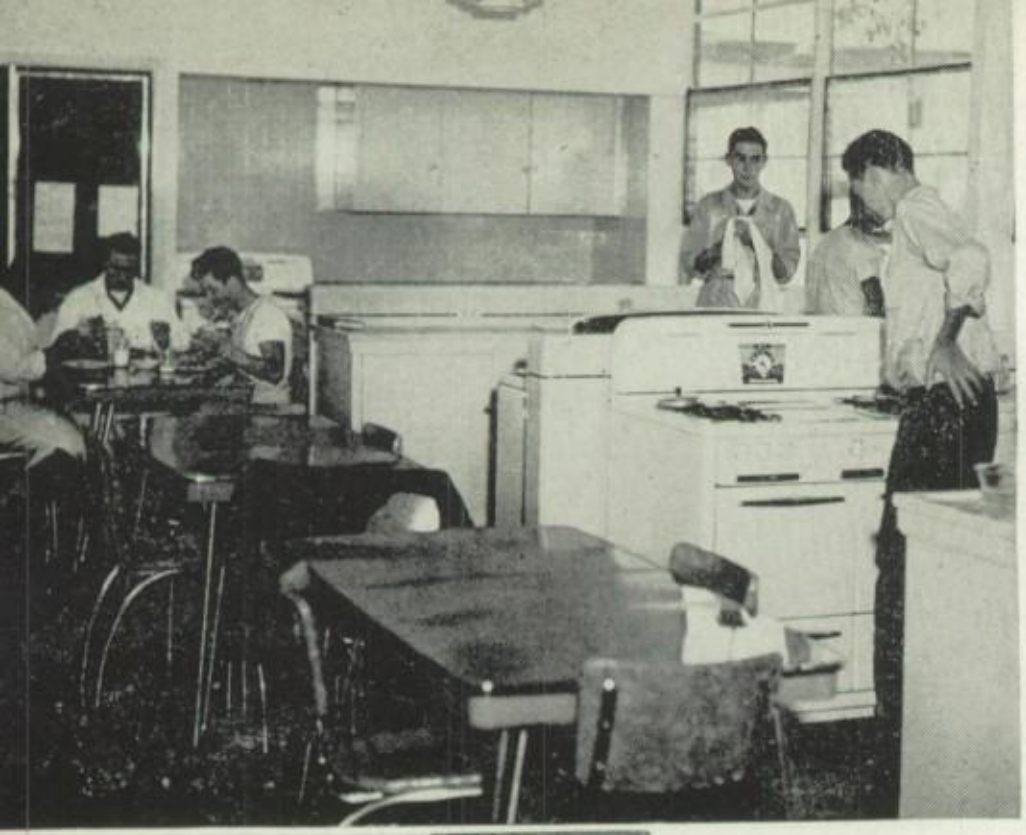
But He Finally Got



Above: Girls, if you marry a graduate of good old H.U.H.S., chances are you can let him do the cooking, for more boys are enrolled in homemaking each year.

An experiment this year was a boys' sewing class, in which the male seamstresses made blazing sports shirts and studied the uses and qualities of materials. Like boys' cooking, the sewing class proved popular and practical. From all appearances, any boy who has taken this course will make some lucky girl a good wife!

More typically male vocations were studied by the boys in agriculture, metalshop, and woodshop, while the girls took up homemaking and another experimental course, interior decoration. The results of this latter were evidenced in the redecorating of the women's faculty rooms and the upholstering done for the sewing room.

For the academic-minded, Spanish and mathematics were available, while special skills, such as arts and crafts, typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping, and even library science, could be had by those who wished them. Students and faculty alike were stricken when Mr. Dane left in March for the U. S. Patent Library, for he was a help to us all.

Social studies included civics and senior problems for the seniors, U. S. history for the juniors, and world history and social studies for the sophomores. Drivers' education, complete with behind-the-wheel training, was a special feature of the sophomore social studies course.

Almost Capsized Wilbur

With Keith Froehlich at the reins of the Class of '54 during the first semester, the sophomores certainly let the juniors and seniors know they were there. For their iniation they painted the "H" and upon the request of the student council provided music at noon. The dance, "Football Frolic", they gave after the Hemet-Palm Springs game was enjoyed by both students and faculty. At the Hallowe'en Carnival the shrieks and screams echoing throughout the fun house were the result of the efforts of this crafty class.

During the second semester, class members finally received their rings after a long and tedious wait. In May, the sophomore girls relinquished to the boys their traditional positions as waitresses for the Junior-Senior banquet. The girls weren't left out though, for they added to the gaiety of the affair as souvenir girls.

Selling refreshments at football games was the first job of the junior class this year. The coffee and hot dogs they sold on those cold nights warmed the spectators, while the tinkling of the money in the class coffers warmed the hearts of the juniors.

Along with sponsoring two dances, the juniors found excitement in the junior-senior football game and in preparing for their class play, "The Campbells Are Coming." This three-act comedy, the height of the juniors' achievement for the year, was presented on March 27 and 28 for the junior high and for the public.

The final job was the junior-senior banquet and prom. An unusual and effective theme was carried out, with the setting and atmosphere of the Stork Club. As waiters, sophomore boys were an innovation while souvenir girls provided the feminine touch.

Toward the end of the year, junior girls were eagerly awaiting the news of who would make and carry the daisy chain for the graduation exercises in June. And what were the boys awaiting eagerly?—The end of the school year, of course!

With their courses charted for the future, the class of '52 has certainly given evidence that it is headed for success. No wonder Joe looks at that cap so proudly. He has every right, for the seniors earned it! Called the "best class in years," they left behind an unusual record of friendliness, cooperation, and school spirit.

Their "steering" might not have been quite so straight, however, if it had not been for the excellent advice and guidance given by Miss Beaird, Mr. Newton, Mr. Vandenberg, and Mr. Killen. Together with the class officers, they were the real "backbone" of the class.

Diplomas

With diplomas as their goal, the seniors chalked up numberless victories on their way. In a tussle with the juniors, football—not fisticuffs, the senior boys scored a 6-0 win. Basketball repeated the same story. In a comic game against the faculty, their score was again the highest—probably due to Coach Jim Johnson's moans, grunts, and groans as the game got under way.

Ditch Day was the traditional secret—but secrets always have a habit of leaking out! And the juniors bade the seniors a juicy good-bye with arms full of oranges.

Yes, land ahoy! And didn't they wish there were more of it as they looked out upon the huge sea of faces on graduation night. Thousands of thoughts—like "what if I trip when I go up to get my diploma," or "am I really graduating, or is it a dream" — and thousands of memories raced through their heads. But at last ! Yes, they had really reached their goal. They were "honest-to-goodness" high-school graduates, proudly, but sadly leaving behind their Hemet High School life, to finish their course either at college or in many various jobs.

COACH ROY COOPER

Pigskin Pulverizers

After getting off to a slow start, the Hemet Bulldog gridiron machine began to raise steam, and finally picked up enough momentum to drive into a three-way tie for the R.C.L. Championship along with Perris and Banning.

Picked by many in the pre-seasonal dope sheets to finish in the depths of the second division, the Bulldogs did not betray the confidence of the student body which was demonstrated at the pep-rallies preceding each game, and at the bonfire-rally that was held on the eve of the tussle with the eternal rival, San Jacinto.

In the first week in September, Coaches Roy Cooper and Al Fages welcomed eight returning lettermen. The summer sun was unmerciful, but the driving determination to win was felt by all Bulldogs.

The evening of September 21 found the defending C.I.F. champs, San Dieguito, at the Hemet Fairgrounds, ready for anything that our Bulldogs could offer. Hemet won the flip of the coin, and choosing to receive, took the ball on the 22 yard line, driving 78 yards to the first touchdown of the season. The Islanders bounded back in the second and third periods, and went on to win by the score of 12-7.

The following week a faithful band of Bulldog rooters followed the team to Garden Grove, with great hopes of seeing the darkhorse Hemet team upset the Argonauts, who finished second only to San Dieguito in the C.I.F. finals. But the coastal air must have been too much for the Bulldogs, for they fell to the red and white-clad oceanmen by the score of 12-0.

October 5 marked the opening of the Riverside County League football season, with the Beaumont Cougar visiting Hemet. The blue-clad Cougar waged a stern battle, but the stellar defensive play of the Bulldogs held the Cherry-Valley team to a scoreless tie.

The following week the locals took the short ride to Perris with expectations of seeing the hotly contested rivalry again burst into a game that would take every regular and reserve man to win. The contest was even-steven until Panther Don Heldoorn broke away for 72 yards. and paycirt. The Bulldogs staged a late bid for a score, but went down in defeat, 7-0.

Palm Springs came to town on the night of October 19 with the intentions of making it two in a row over the Bulldogs, but the victory-hungry Hemet gridders weren't of the same convictions. The Bulldogs remembered only too well that they were nosed out of the championship by the Indians in a wild and woolly struggle in the resort city last year, and took it out on the Indians' scalp to the tune of 14-7.

The following week the Hemet football scene shifted to the San Jacinto gridiron where the largest and noisiest crowd of the year saw the two cross-valley teams, both branded as darkhorses, wage a tooth and nail battle. San Jacinto was first to score, and led 6-0 at halftime. In the third quarter after the Tiger safety man had fumbled a punt, Bob Glover plowed into the end zone for 6; Bohmfalk's conversion was perfect.

Later in the period the Tigers' Tommy Ricketts slashed off-tackle from the Hemet 8 yard line, but was hit with such impact by Bob Wiens that he fumbled, whereupon Bob Glover snatched up the loose pigskin and rambled 98 yards for another six. That just about demoralized the Tigers. After the kickoff, Bill Wyatt intercepted a Tiger pass, which set up Bohmfalk's field goal, kicked from the 24 yard line. The ten-point deficit was too much for the hard-charging Tigers, and after the gun sounded, Coaches Cooper and Fages, and the game-saver Bob Glover, were hauled off the field by the triumphant Bulldogs.

Returning to the Fairgrounds the following week, the Bulldogs met the Elsinore Tigers, who were tabbed to walk away with the league honors. The local boys didn't pay too much attention to the papers, and went on to wax the Lake City Tigers 28-14. In doing so the Bulldogs played the best all-round game of the season to date.

the Crown

The following Friday found the Bulldogs in the Date Bowl at Coachella to tangle with the "spoiler" Arabs who had knocked over "top dog" Banning the previous week. The Bulldogs led at the intermission, 3-0, by virtue of John Bohmfalk's field goal, but the green and gold Arabs came back strong in the second half to take the contest by the score of 14-3.

The final week of the 1951 R.C.L. grid campaign found three teams, — Perris, Banning, and Hemet—in the running for the championship. The Bulldogs would be "in" if they defeated Banning, and if Coachella handed Perris a loss. Hemet stuck to the first part of the conditions, but the Arabs couldn't stem the green and white tide from Perris. Hemet and Banning tangled at the Fairgrounds in the local finale, which proved to be the best effort of the season for the Bulldogs. Banning led at the halftime, but the locals came back strong in the final half to annex the thriller by the tightest of scores, 7-6.

At the dinner sponsored by the Riverside Enterprise the following Bulldogs were recognized for their stellar playing by being placed on the mythical All-R.C.L. Grid Team: Bob Glover, fullback; John Bohmfalk,tackle.

The Junior Bulldogs, although having a short season, won three out of five of their games. After finishing their regular league play, a number of the little turfsters moved up with the varsity. These scrappy hustlers provided the needed spark to help the varsity squad to secure the championship.

Mid-November found the sports scene moving from the gridiron to the basketball courts.

The flashy Hemet squad had a 7 and 0 season in R.C.L. competition. They captured two titles, R.C.L. Tourney Champs and the R.C.L. championship itself. After finishing the regular league play, the Bulldogs went on to win their first game against Calexico in the C.I.F. playoffs. They played the Chula Vista Spartans next, and after a hair-raising contest came out on the short end of a 42-37 score.

Crafty Bob Thompson was named on the All-R.C.L. team by the Riverside Enterprise, along with four other stellar players. Leonard Yates and Bill Wyatt were selected for the second team, and center Chuck Reeves won a berth on the third team.

As a climax to his high school athletic career, star forward Bobby Thompson was placed on the mythical All-C.I.F. basketball team.

Bullpups Learned the Ropes

The B's, although not as fortunate as their elder brothers, had a remarkably successful season. The scrappy Bullpups lost their first league game to Beaumont on the Cougar home court. This, however, didn't dishearten the boys. The next week they sported a decisive victory over a weak Perris quintet.

Palm Springs hosted the visiting Bullpups the following week. The little Papooses were defeated 33 to 32 after two overtime periods. In the following four weeks the Bullpups had a 2 and 2 record. San Jacinto and Coachella fell to the sharp-shooting Hemet squad while Elsinore and Banning won over the hustling Bullpups.

The Bullpups placed three men on All-R.C.L. nomination. Jim Fricker, B center, won a spot on the third team, while Gene Boyd and Si Burnham received honorable mention. After the season ended, the team selected Jim Fricker as most valuable player. Gene Boyd and Si Burnham were elected co-captains for the year.

Sophomores Manned the Cees

The Cee hoopsters battled their way to second place in the western division of the R.C.L. and fourth place in the entire R.C.L. The little quintet was handicapped to begin with, because of a new league ruling, banning the use of Junior High players. Sparked by such standouts as Kenny Kinkade, Eddie Lowrimore, and Jerry Fricker, the team of six players showed that with a little more depth they could become a great ball team. Coach Ted Smith was well pleased with their successful season.

The Bulldog varsity had its greatest season since 1946, winning five straight league games before bowing to the championship Coachella club. The most sparkling victory of the season was the 18-6 triumph over the ancient rival, San Jacinto.

Though the loss of the championship was a heartbreaker, the Bulldogs consoled themselves with the fact that they had the league's leading hitter in Ronnie Beavers.

With only four seniors and one junior on this year's lineup, the Bulldogs showed that in future years they would have the makings of more great teams.

Thinclads Ran on the Inside Track

When the call for spikesters was sounded, the speedsters turned out in numbers, providing Hemet with its largest track squad in the last three or four years.

Coach Gaudreault was well pleased with the showing of his thinclads, having had three of his boys place in the Laguna Invitational Meet. John Fricker, the Bulldog captain, galloped to a first in the mile, while Bill Murray tied for a first in the high jump and Buddy Alvarez captured a third in the 1320.

Hemet won two out of three of its practice meets, defeating Palm Springs and San Jacinto in duel contests and losing to Perris in a triangular meet held at San Jacinto.

The R.C.L. meet was again held at Perris. Although bad weather hampered the cinder men, the Bulldogs were able to grab their share of the wins. Bob Wiens, who was most valuable player, and Bill Murray led the squad, each garnering a second and a fourth. Bob placed second in the 180 low hurdles and a fourth in the broad jump, while Bill sported a second in the high jump and fourth in the high hurdles. The other varsity men who took home their share of the laurels were John Fricker, first in the mile; Dick Hart, third in the 880; Bob Glover, fourth in the shot-put; and Ronnie Beavers fifth in the pole vault.

Hemet's feminine netters topped the boys in this year's performance, ending up with second place in the R.C.L. and two medal winners. Francie Brown, second singles, and Dorothy Lingo, fourth singles, swung straight through the season, winning medals as R.C.L. champs. Mary Wilson, third singles, and Grace Sims, first singles, won over Perris and San Jacinto, but lost to the Elsinore queens. First doubles, Mary Lou Yoakum and Wanda Bunch also met defeat at the hands of Elsinore after winning their earlier bouts, while second doubles Pat Knight and Pat Seeley came through as winners in the Western Division, but lost to Banning in the R.C.L. playoffs.

Among the male racketeers, Shack Pitcher distinguished himself by winning all his R.C.L. matches at third singles, while Gregg Figgins and Tom Leavelle won two out of three league matches at second doubles. Team scores made by the boys' tennis team on league matches were: Elsinore, 22—Hemet, 3; Perris, 5—Hemet, 20; San Jacinto, 16—Hemet, 9. Players were: first singles, Fred Bancroft; second singles, Jim Fricker; third singles, Shack Pitcher; fourth singles, Bob Glover and Gordon Kesson; first doubles, Ken Kinkade and John Holland; and second doubles, Gregg Figgins and Tom Leavelle.

After the tedious task of earning C.S.F. grades the members received a new privilege — that of leaving for lunch five minutes early. In December the group took a Friday off from school and went to the Griffith Park Observatory, had lunch at the Farmers' Market in Los Angeles, and saw Quo Vadis at the Four Star Theatre. March 24 found the "brains" visiting the San Diego Zoo, after which they took a two-hour, twenty-five mile cruise around San Diego Bay.

Other social events for the C.S.F. were the two dinners, one each semester, served by the new members of the organization. Burnt tamale pie was featured on the first menu, and tacos with burning sauce on the second.

Ten annual staff members were elected to Quill and Scroll, honorary journalism society for high school students, this year. While in the throes of preparing the annual for press, the group could not even find time for an initiation, but planned a celebration later.

Methods So Zany...

"Cakes for sale! Pies! Cookies! Won't someone please buy our food?" This was the vociferous plea with which the G.A.A. confronted townspeople at the two food sales which were among their money-making schemes for the year. For finances were a major obstacle in the way of the annual Big Bear snow trip planned by the G.A.A. Money for this event was also raised by a backward sock hop and a backward dinner.

In addition to their social activities, G.A.A. members enjoyed their Tuesday and Thursday meetings after school, although fatalities were apt to occur when such sports as hockey and softball rolled around. The sports themselves aren't rough, but those Amazon gals can make anything hazardous!

If on December 22 you saw beautiful girls in beautiful gowns entering the Woman's Club on the arms of their favorite beaux, you should have known the Key Club was responsible for the affair. It was the Christmas ball, put on annually by this group. This dance, with its huge tree and soft, colored lights, ushered in the holiday season, putting every one in the mood for Christmas festivities.

During the month of May the Hemet Key Club sent twenty-five delegates to the annual convention, held this year at Merced.

These Key Club members, chosen as "key" boys in all phases of school life, must maintain a C average and be active in curricular activities. First semester officers were: Maure Hurt, president; John Long, vice president; Vic Hill, secretary; and Bill Wyatt, treasurer. Second-semester officers were: Jerry Marston, president; Stan Riesland, vice president; Keith Froehlich, secretary; and Silas Henry Burnham, III, treasurer.

The Lettermen's Club is the oldest and most traditionally-minded club in the school. The club is comprised of all athletes who have earned their varsity letters in one of the four major sports.

The club members were kept busy this year with all the functions they sponsored. For the last four years the Lettermen's Club has sponsored the Bee and Cee Invitational Basketball tournaments. This year their two dances and annual Rube Day were howling successes. The "game of the year" was also under the supervision of these energetic boys. This game was between the senior boys and the faculty men. Yes, the seniors beat their aged instructors 36-13.

F.F.A. greenhands served as the targets at the carnival sponge throw.

Farmers Turned Fishermen . .

In Future Farmer activities fun plays its part. At the Hallowe'en carnival many greenhand members learned about fun through wet sponges. The formal initiation was held as a joint activity with the Perris Chapter. Judging contests, fairs, field trips, and other events provided profitable experiences as well as personal enjoyment.

The club, making use of the new cafeteria, held several especially interesting meetings. Mr. Hillas Cole told of his experience as a Future Farmer in Iowa; Mr. James Riesland spoke on his hobby of guns; and Mr. Harry Hoffman of the Farmers Fair spoke on horses.

A new adventure of the chapter during the year was its entry in the State Farm Safety Contest.

At a program put on for the Grange in March, Farmers described their home projects and told about the year's chapter activities.

The climax of the year came with the annual parent and son banquet at which awards for the year were given.

Homemakers Tried...

Our Future Homemakers started out with a bang this year, growing both in size and vitality. The highlight of the year was the State meeting at Asilomar near San Francisco, to which our local chapter sent Lois Martin, Sally Hall, and Mary Mastro. A meeting for the purpose of re-organizing Section X was held at Fontana, with Dorothy Boe, Mary Parsinnen, Betty Schofield and Lois Martin attending. At this meeting Lois Martin was elected Section President, and several of the Junior high girls were elected to offices.

The main event of the year was the big Section X meeting held in Hemet, March 29, with about 157 girls attending. Other activities of the year included Hallowe'en and Valentine parties, various programs, and monthly meetings.

This year the F.H.A. is planning to give a scholarship of one hundred dollars to the girl who is planning to attend college with a Home Economics major.

Again the High School Chorus did the beautiful singing for the annual Christmas cantata. The members sang for the Kiwanis Club on two occasions and for several other groups. They also helped on the music department's spring concert, along with the band and the junior high chorus.

Under the direction of Mr. Salvione this group did a fine job wherever they went and whatever they did.

This year our Bulldog band, under the direction of Mr. Miller and the lively drum major, Dick Hart, took part in many activities, participating in parades and concerts all over Southern California. Game appearances, with their popular songs and catchy routines, inspired pep and school spirit.

In November all the members went to Long Beach for the annual All-Western Band Review. En route they were treated by the Band Boosters Club to a chicken dinner at Knott's Berry Farm.

On Washington's birthday the band traveled to Indio to march in the parade and enjoy a day at the County Fair. Several members also went to Beaumont for the Riverside County Band Concert. In March they earned a II rating in the band and orchestra festival held at Chaffey. In April the group completed its concert season by going to Santa Monica for the final step of the band and orchestra contest begun at Chaffey. Here, too, they placed in Division II.

While the Staff

Mary Fletcher and Patty Lingo find an amusing picture in the photo scrapbook, while Dawn Heavin looks for a suitable shot for use in the annual. All were members of the editorial staff of this book.

Picture deadlines! Copy deadlines! Deadlines . . . deadlines . . . deadlines! With these storm warnings posted for March 1 and April 4, the 1952 Tahquitz staff, prodded by Mrs. Frances Hagen, advisor, worked diligently to send the book to press on time.

In order to meet the deadlines, the scheduling of pictures and the taking of them began immediately at the outset of the school year. Dummies were made, as well as lists of pictures to be taken, — together with plans for the shooting. And then the rains came, — with the resulting postponements and retakes. After being developed, contacted, and test printed, final photos were made, cropped, taped and sent to the engraver. Meanwhile, the business staff sold ads, collected bills, scheduled ad pictures, and wrote copy.

Time was growing short; proofs were coming back from the engraver; copy and captions, plus assembling and proof reading had to be completed in about three weeks. Room 16, heretofore little used, became comparable to New York's Fifth Avenue, with just as much confusion and clatter.

At times, it seemed beyond comprehension that this muddled mess of cluttered paper could ever become the attractive book which the staff had visualized at the beginning of the year. But on April 4, the final deadline, the skeleton Tahquitz embarked on its final journey to the print shop and bindery, and thence back to you, its readers.

Mrs. Frances Hagen, Tahquitz advisor, is always happy on distribution day!

Went Whale Happy

This year's theme of Joe Naugh and the Whale was dreamed up by Gail Price, while Susan Peacock and Patty Lingo developed the idea in the division pages and art work. As anyone who has ever worked on an annual knows, the hardest work and longest hours are put in by the photographers and dark-room workers, and this year's group, led by Mr. Newton, was both conscientious and competent.

A new arrangement, inaugurated this year, was the handling of the financial end of the Tahquitz by the Senior Class, under the direction of Richard Killen, senior advisor. Four senior girls made up the advertising staff, while Tomy Loomis ,first-semester senior prexy, headed a committee in charge of sales and the annual Slave Day contest.

Mrs. Velma Howard's junior high publications class proved invaluable to the Tahquitz staff. They scheduled pictures and did much of the junior high school photography, which lessened the load on the senior high photographers; and they also provided copy and identifications for their section of the annual.

JUNIOR HIGH

Mrs. Nellie Banes

There is an empty place this year in the junior high, for Mrs. Nellie Banes, beloved by all her students, passed away in October after a prolonged illness. In 1946, Mrs. Banes and her husband came to Hemet from Wyoming, where they had lived since their marriage in 1934. Their ranch life, experiences in hunting, fishing, and other outdoor activities were among the happiest moments in her life.

During the five years that Mrs. Banes taught at Hemet junior high, she had to use the library as a classroom because of lack of space. This year she was to have had her own wish — a room of her own. But she never had the opportunity to use it.

Mrs. Banes was a teacher who was sincerely interested in each one of her students, and the type of person to whom anyone could go with his troubles.

One hardly ever saw her without a corsage or a bouquet of flowers in her room. Flowers and Mrs. Banes were practically one.

And so it is, though Mrs. Banes is gone, her memory remains, — like the lingering fragrance of the flowers she so loved.

C. J. SALISBURY, Junior High Principal

"George" enrolled in the Hemet school system simultaneously with the arrival of Mr. C. J. Salisbury three years ago as a mathematics and social studies teacher. "George" is the sucker for loan sharks, witnessor of the invention of algebra, and the pricinpal actor in Mr. Salisbury's many humorous math and history illustrations.

In the fall of 52 when Mr. Warfel advanced to senior high, Mr. Salisbury became junior high principal. He has not only proved to be a competent administrator, but also displayed an intensive repertoire of jokes and wise cracks.

The Student Council is an organization of the students in which they may express their opinions and wishes in school affairs. The Council gives the students experience in leadership and self-government. Student body officers are elected by the students with the approval of the teachers. The officers should be willing to set an example of good school citizenship. It is their duty to be leaders in the school and to conduct the Student Council. They work with their teachers, the school principal, and Mr. Schlef, their excellent council advisor.

Our hall monitors have done a fine job in checking student traffic in the halls.

The office assistants have helped Mrs. Weseloh by running errands, delivering messages, and doing various jobs.

Students have willingly co-operated with Mr. Schlef by picking up tardy and absence slips and recording them.

Student librarians were kept busy checking out and reshelving books, assisting students in their use of the library, and writing overdue book notices.

With Help From

Members of the Publications class are a selected group whose principal duty is to publish "The Bullpup's Bark," junior high school newspaper. This class also is the contact group for the Tahquitz staff in the production of the annual.

Demonstrating the twin qualities of skill and duty, our projectionists have brought us the finest service in presenting classroom and full-length films. They put in many hours showing and previewing films; setting up the loudspeaker system for dances; handling the lighting system at plays; and many other services which show their school spirit.

Formed in September, under the direction of Mr. Dan Salvione, the Junior High School Girls' Glee Club numbered twenty-one members at the end of the school year.

Clad in their uniforms of blue weskit, gray skirt, and yellow neckerchief, the group appeared at a regular P.-T.A. meeting for its initial performance. Then came appearances at Open House, the Christmas Parade, Spring Concert, Junior High Assembly, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Junior High Graduation.

To be a member of the honor roll, students must have a grade average of "A". Those receiving honorable mention must have a grade average of "B". The grade average is based on all subjects, thus making it necessary for honor roll members to be good "all-around" students.

By Instinct

Junior high is an important step in a student's life before entering senior high school. It gives him an opportunity to plan for the years ahead and to prepare himself to live and work with others.

While in junior high he can take many different types of courses in order to find out what his abilities are and what subjects he wishes to take in high school.

The objectives of the girls' athletic program are to instill into the girls the characteristics of good sportsmanship, healthful and clean living, good citizenship and fun.

The program was set up to include team sports such as basketball, speedball, softball, and volleyball. Individual sports included swimming and tennis. Exercises, calisthenics, and posture were included with an eye to the trim figure.

Physical education is an important part of the school program designed to help girls physically and keep them mentally alert. In no other class does the student have a better opportunity to learn sportsmanship and to get along with others than in physical education.

(11) Bob Spencer, Gordon Kesson, and Roland Dreiman beat the drums for H.U.H.S. (12) Trampolene artists demonstrate for the junior high audience. Ernest Golden on mat. (13) Band director Curtis Miller has to be a jack-of-all-trades—here he ties a Windsor for Ann Hardin. (14) Jerry Skelton wields the drumsticks. (15) Jeanne Neal looks unusually thoughtful—huh?

Jack ~
I think you are a very nice boy.
Good luck next and every other school year, and the future.

Jacob,
Even though I don't know you very well, I think you are pretty
